QUESTION(S) PRESENTED

(Refused Proof Of Evidence That Had Been Overlooked)

#1. Did the United States Federal Court Of Appeals For The Ninth Circuit abuse its discretion by refusing Appellant's/ Petitioner's submission of documents of evidential information directly relating to the issue before the appellate court which was overlooked by the appellate court that also stated the information did not exist, and as a consequence dismissed Appellant's/Petitioner's suits?

(Denied Equitable Tolling)

#2. May the United states Federal District Court for the Eastern District and The United States Federal Circuit Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit Court deny Appellant/Petitioner the right to equitable tolling of his complaint where The Federal District Court

refused to appoint him legal representation, to assist in properly processing his suit against Individual Government Postal Officials and Government Postal Agency; especially where Appellant/ Petitioner had requested to the District court to appoint him legal representation during the originating of his legal filing in order to properly pursue his suit, and the court did not appoint legal representation until after two years into the case proceedings?

(Refused The Doctrine "Exhaustion Of Administrative Procedure")

#3. May the United States District Court for the Eastern District and the United States Court Of Appeals For The Ninth Circuit Court refuse to apply the doctrine of "Exhaustion of Administrative EEOC Procedure" prior to filing legal complaint and equitable tolling after EEOC issues right to sue?

(Found No Submitted Evidence Of Others Treated Differently)

#4. May the United States Federal Court Of Appeals For The Ninth Circuit Court find that Appellant/Petitioner had not submitted any evidence that others outside of his protected class were treated more favorably when the court itself overlooked directly related and genuine material disputed factual evidence in the records, and the court later refused to acknowledge such information upon Appellant filing a request for rehearing and submission of exhibits by denying appellant's submission of exhibits as proof and his request for rehearing?

(Denied Disputed Issues Of Facts To Be Tried By A Jury)

#5. Did the United States Court Of Appeals For The Ninth Circuit Court abuse its discretion by refusing to have Appellant/ Petitioner the right to a "Jury Trial" where Appellant/Petitioner alleged Racial Discrimination, Religious Discrimination, Reprisal; Handicap Discrimination; On-going Discrimination; Harassment, and Conspiracy in which genuine disputed factual issues that are directly affect the decision exist?

(Denied Any Jury Trial Prior To November, 1991)

#6. May the United states Federal District Court for the Eastern District and the Federal Court Of Appeals For The Ninth Circuit Court find that Appellant/Petitioner had no right to jury trial before November, 1919 against the United States Federal Postal Service, including Title VII discrimination claims involving termination, refusal to promotion, loss of pay, differential in compensation and benefits given to other races, and where there were genuine issues of disputed facts?

(Refused Submission Of Newly Discovered Evidence)

#7. May The United States Court Of appeals For The Ninth Circuit refuse Appellant's/Petitioner's "Newly Discovered Evidence" that was not capable of being produced prior to the appeal procedure?

(Denied Right To Sue Government Individuals and Government Agency)

#8. May the United States Federal District Court for the Eastern District and the United States Federal Court Of Appeals For The Ninth Circuit deny Appellant/Petitioner the right to sue United States Postal Government workers

individually, and the United States Postal Service Postmaster General Of The United States Postal Service Of The United States Of America, on grounds of: Race Discrimination; Religion Discrimination; Reprisal; Handicap Discrimination; On-Going Discrimination; Harassment, and Conspiracy?

(Denied Right To Immediate And Unconditional Restoration)

#9. Did the United States Postal Service deprive Appellant/Petitioner of his right to return to his prior government job position and benefits after his recovery from employment related injuries that accounted for less than a one year absence and his approved Workers' Compensation Claim?

(Violated Constitutional Rights Under The 7th and 14th Amendment)

#10. Did the Federal Courts violate

Plaintiff's/Appellant's/Petitioner's "Constitutional Rights" under the Seventh and Fourteenth amendment by the preceding acts numbers 1 through 9 alleged in this petition?

STATEMENT OF THE CASE

Employee/Plaintiff/Appellant/Petitioner

(hereinafter referred to as Petitioner)

filed his "Formal EEOC Complaint" on June 21, 1989 on grounds of Postal Service Employment Discrimination in the areas of: (1) Race (2) Union Steward (3) Handicap (4) Reprisal after Agency failed to mandatory and unconditionally restore, as provided for in 5CFR Section 353.301, Amendment XIV of the United States Constitution "equal protection of the law" and "due process of the law" clauses, Petitioner to his previous job and his rights upon recovery from job related injuries. Whereby, Postal Agency's officials did not immediately nor unconditionally restore Petitioner, but they delayed reinstating him, required the conditions that Petitioner complete a new application for employment, undergo drug testing, physical testing, hearing testing, sight testing, he be placed on a different tour (graveyard tour.

On May 15, 1990 EEOC issued its decision and a right to sue letter as provided do under 29 CFR SECTION 1613.281 and 282. Petitioner filed his Civil Action on May 30, 1990 (15 days after the decision and right to sue letter) under Title VII Of The Civil Rights Act Of 1964, 42 U.S.C. Section 2000e, and the Rehabilitation Act, 29 U.S.C. Section 791. Within Petitioner's complaint was a request for the District Court to appoint attorney representation under 28 U.S.C. Section 1915 due to proof of indigence.

On March 9, 1992, District Court granted Petitioner's motion for appointment of counsel.

On November 24, 1992, after appointment of counsel, District Court granted Petitioner's motion to amend his complaint to sue for violation and damages under Title IV of the Civil Rights Acts of 1964 and 1991, 42 U.S.C. Section 1981, 1985(d), and 29 U.S.C. Section 791.

On February 1, 1993, District Court ordered Petitioner's cases 2:90-cv-1106 be consolidated with Petitioner's cases 2:92-cv-1613.

On March 1, 1994, District Court granted Defendants' motion to dismiss any claims against the United States Arising Under 42 U.S.C. Section 1981 or 1985, and further granted Defendants' motion for Summary Judgment as to Plaintiff's (herein Petitioner's) 42 U.S.C. Section 1981 and 1985 claims against the individual Defendants.

On June 1, 1994, District Court determined and ordered that there are no genuine issues of material facts and that Defendant is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Further, District Court granted Defendant's motion for Summary Judgment on Plaintiff (herein Petitioner) Conerly's claims arising under Title VII Of The Civil Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. 2000e-16.

Plaintiff (herein Petitioner) filed his Notice Of Appeal For The Ninth Circuit Court on June 17, 1994.

On August 22, 1995 The United States Court Of appeals For The Ninth Circuit dismissed Plaintiff's (herein Petitioner's) Appeal for lack of jurisdiction because the District Court had not ruled on Plaintiff's (herein Petitioner's) disability claim.

On May 21, 1996 District Court granted Defendant's motion for Summary Judgment on Plaintiff's Rehabilitation Act Claim, basing its decision on facts within the records of June 1, 1994 District Court's decision.

On May 28, 1996 Appellant (herein Petitioner) filed his Notice Of Appeal For The United States Court Of Appeals For The Ninth Circuit.

On August 27, 1997, The United States Court Of appeals For The Ninth Circuit filed and entered, filed, an order that the judgment of the District Court be affirmed.

On September 15, 1997, Appellant (herein Petitioner) filed his "Petition For Rehearing" and "Petitioner's Motion To File Exhibits" in the United States Court Of Appeal For The Ninth Circuit.

On November 13, 1997, The United States Court Of Appeals For The Ninth Circuit denied Appellant's (herein Petitioner's) motion to file exhibits and his petition for rehearing.

Petitioner comes now to make this Petition For Certiorari.

REASON FOR GRANTING THE PETITION

1. The Appellate Court overlooked crucial evidence in the records and after by means of overlooking and refusing submission of Appellant's/Petitioner's evidence submitted in Appellant's/ Petitioner's Request for Rehearing and

Motion To File Exhibits, the Appellate Court was able to decide in favor of the Defendants/Respondents. In the case of Anderson, et. al. v. Liberty Lobby, Inc., et al., 477 U.S. 243 (1985), the U.S. Supreme Court held "the Court of Appeals held that the requirement the actual malice be proved by clear and convincing evidence need not be considered at the summary judgment stage, and the with respect to those statements summary judgment had been improperly granted because a jury could reasonably have concluded that the allegations were defamatory, false, and made with actual malice." In the case at hand, the information that the District Court and the Appellate Court stated did not exist, did in fact exist within the records, and was "genuine" of such evidence that a reasonable jury could return a verdict in favor of Plaintiff/Appellant/Petitioner. Whereby, Plaintiff/Appellant/ Petitioner stated, in the records, information that was admitted to by the Defendants/ Appellees/Respondents, that the agency choose to move Plaintiff/Appellant/ Petitioner rather than another individual of a different race, and that there were three other white race individuals that had been restored to duty with different treatment than he. The Appellate Court's decisions were directly opposed to Federal Rule 60 of Civil Procedures, because in light of this rule, the District Court's Decision should have been reversed and remanded. The Appellate Court failed and refused Plaintiff's rights under Federal Rule of Appellate Procedure 40.

2. Both the District Court and the Court of Appeals failed and refused comply with the lawful equitable tolling provided under 29 CFR Section 1613.281 and Section 1613.282, which barred Plaintiff/ Appellant/Petitioner from filing a suit in court until exhaustion of his Administrative remedy and after a right to sue letter is issued. In the case of McKart v. United States 395 U.S. 185, 89 S Ct. 1657, the U.S. Supreme Court held that the agency should be given the first chance to exercise that discretion or to apply that expertise." In Gibson v. Berryhill, 411 U.S. 564, 93 S Ct. 1689, the U.S. Supreme Court stated that "A party must exhaust his available administrative remedies before invoking the equitable jurisdiction of a court."

This is exactly what Plaintiff/ Appellant/Petitioner did in the case at hand. Therefore, he had rights under USC Section 1981 as well as Title VII that the District and Appellate Court failed to acknowledge.

3. Notwithstanding the case of Barbara Landgraf v. USI Film Products, et al., 511 U.S. 244 (1994) decision in 1991, Plaintiff/Appellant/Petitioner had a right to jury trial for the following reasons:

(a) His case involved on-going acts, conspiracy, and violations of his civil rights by Federal Government Officials interfering with his pursuit of legal justice.

(b) In the Landgraf case, the Supreme Court provided for a "jury trial" where the "complaining party seeks compensatory or punitive damages under the 1991 Act of Civil Rights." In the case at hand, not only was the complaining party's case still in District Court during the Landgraf decision, but it also involved on-going acts, conspiracy, and interference with his pursuit of legal redress.

(c) Plaintiff/Appellant/Petitioner was entitled to relief under 42 USC Section 2000e-5, 42 USC Section 1981, 42 USC Section 1985, and 29 USC Section 701 et seq.

4. All of the Individual Defendants/ Appellees/Respondents, the agency

Defendant/Appellee/Respondent, the District Court, and the Appellate Court clearly violated Plaintiff's/Appellant's/ Petitioner's Constitutional rights under the VII and XIV Amendments by depriving him of "due process" and "equal protection" rights that were guaranteed under the United States Constitution. In the case of Celotex Corp. v. Catrett, Administratrix Of The Estate Of Catrett 477 U.S. 323 (1986), the court held "a party seeking summary judgment always bears the initial responsibility of informing the district court of the basis for its motion, and identifying those portions of 'the pleading, depositions, answers to interrogatories, and admissions on file, together with the affidavits, if any,' which it believes demonstrate the absence of a genuine issue of material fact." In the case at hand, the party seeking summary judgment purposely swayed the district court to overlook evidence of mentioned white race individuals, the district court purposely erred in granting the summary judgment in favor of the moving party, and the appellate court purposely erred in overlooking the record's evidence that was directly related and upholding the wrong doings of the lower district court.

CONCLUSION

For the reasons set forth above and herein, a writ of certiorari should issue to revise the judgment, orders, and decisions of the Court Of Appeals in this matter.

APPENDIX F

James Earl Conerly, and employee of the United States Postal Service, appeals pro se the district court's summary judgment in favor of the Postmaster in Conerly's action alleging discrimination on the basis of his race and disability. This appeal is dismissed for lack of jurisdiction because the district court's order was not a final, appealable judgment. See 28 U.S.C. Section 1291; Chacon v. Babcock, 640 F. 2d 221, 222 (9th Cir. 1981). Absent certification under Fed. R. Civ. P. 54(b), the dispositions as to Conerly's Title Vii claims and civil rights claims do not

Plaintiff,

MEMORANDUM AND ORDER

v.

MARVIN T. RUNYON, JR., POSTMASTER GENERAL OF THE UNITED STATES, et al.

Defendants.

----ooOoo----

On June 17, 1994, plaintiff Conerly filed a notice of appeal to the United States Court of Appeals for the Ninth Circuit. On June 28, 1994, this court granted Conerly's motion to proceed on appeal in forma pauperis. Conerly now asks the court to direct the Administrative Office of the U.S. Courts to pay the court reporter to produce transcripts of proceedings in this court for his use on appeal.

A party appealing in forma pauperis may be furnished transcripts at government expense "if the trial judge or a circuit judge certifies that the appeal is not frivolous (but presents a substantial question)." 28 U.S.C. Section 753(f); Henderson v. United States, 734 F.2d 483, 484 (9th Cir. 1984). In addition to determining whether the appeal presents a substantial question, the court must decide whether the transcripts are necessary to decide the issues on appeal. See McKinney v. Anderson, 924 F.2d 1500, 1511-12 (9th Cir. 1991); McCarthy v. Bronson, 906 F.2d 835, 841 (2d Cir. 1990); Harvey v. Andrist, 754 F.2d 569, 571 (5th Cir. 1985).

Transcripts are not necessary in this case. Conerly is appealing from orders dismissing certain claims and granting summary judgment on others. The court's reasons for granting defendants" motion to dismiss and for summary judgment are fully set forth in written orders of March 1, 1994 and June 1, 1994. The only proceedings transcribed by the court reporter were oral arguments presented during the court's civil law and motion calendar. The court did not issue any rulings or indicate the basis for its rulings on the record during those proceedings, and no evidence was presented on the record.

Courts "must be rigorous" in their consideration of motions such as this "to ensure that the treasury is not unduly imposed on." Walker v. People Express Airlines, Inc., 886 F.2d 598, 601 (3d Cir. 1989). Because the production of transcripts at the public expense would not materially aid either Conerly or the Court of appeals, IT IS ORDERED that the motion be, and the same is, hereby DENIED.

Examination of the above-entitled actions reveals that both actions are related within the meaning of Local Rule 123(a) (E.D. Cal. 1984). The actions involve the same parties, and are based on the same or similar claims, the same property, transaction or event, similar questions of fact and the same question of law. Accordingly, the assignment of the matters to the same judge is likely to effect a substantial saving of judicial effort and is also likely to be convenient for the parties.

The parties should be aware that relating the cases under Local Rule 123 merely has the result that both actions are assigned to the same judge and magistrate judge; no consolidation of the action is effected. Under the regular practice of this court, related cases are generally assigned to the judge and magistrate judge to whom the first filed action was assigned.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that the action denominated CIV. NO. S-92-1631-LKK/JFM be, and the same hereby is, reassigned to Judge William B. Shubb for all further proceedings, and any dates currently set in this reassigned case only are hereby VACATED. The parties are referred to the attached Order Setting Status (Pretrial Scheduling) Conference. Henceforth, the caption on documents filed in the reassigned case shall be shown as CIV. NO. S-92-1631-WBS/JFM.

On September 10, 1992, plaintiff petitioned the court for an order allowing him to proceed with this lawsuit in forma pauperis. This court, after examining plaintiff's affidavit, hereby grants plaintiff's motion to proceed with his action in forma pauperis pursuant to 28 U.S.C. Section 1915(a). Based on this determination, the United States Marshal is directed to issue and serve all process without prepayment of costs not later than sixty (60) days from the effective date of this order.

Plaintiff should note that the determination that he may proceed in forma pauperis does not complete the threshold inquiry required of the district court. The court is also directed pursuant to 28 U.S.C. Section 1915(d) to determine that the action is of legal substance and, therefore, not frivolous or malicious. As the record in this action now stands, however, this determination cannot be made. The court therefore reserves the action until the record is sufficiently developed to support the directed inquiry.

The court also notes that in his form complaint attached to the application, plaintiff seeks appointment of legal counsel pursuant to 42 U.S.C.

Section 2000e-(f)(1)(B). Although a formal motion seeking appointment of counsel is not presently before the court, the court notes that any further application to appoint legal counsel must comply with those criteria set forth in Bradshaw v. Zoological Society of San Diego, 662 F.2d 1301 (9th Cir. 1981). In Bradshaw, the Ninth Circuit identified three factors which the court must consider in ruling on a motion for appointment of counsel: (1) the indigency of the plaintiff, (2) the efforts made by the plaintiff to retain counsel for himself, and (3) the merits of the plaintiff's lawsuit. Accordingly, plaintiff is cautioned to conform his a application with the Bradshaw requirements.

IT IS SO ORDERED.

Plaintiff filed this action pursuant to Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, 42 U.S.C. Section 2000e-5, alleging discrimination on the bases of race, religion, handicap and reprisal in the handling of his return to work at the Sacramento Post Office in the spring of 1989.[1] The action is based on the allegations of discriminatory conduct throughout the reinstatement process.[2]

The court previously denied plaintiff's motion for appointment of counsel by Order dated January 15, 1991. The three relevant factors which the court considered in resolving the request for appointment of counsel were: (1) the plaintiff's financial resources; (2) the efforts made by plaintiff to secure counsel; and (3) whether plaintiff's claim has merit. Bradshaw v. Zoological Society of San Diego, 662 F.2d 1301, 1318 (9th Cir. 1981). In the Order, the court found that the first two criteria had been met, but that plaintiff had failed to demonstrate to the satisfaction of the court that there was any merit to his claim. _____/

This matter is before the court on defendants' motion to dismiss, or, in the alternative, for summary judgment. The matter was heard and submitted on March 11, 1991.

THE CASE

Plaintiff has filed a civil rights action pursuant to Title VII of the Civil Rights Act, 42 U.S.C. Section 2000e-5. Plaintiff alleges job discrimination on the basis of race, religion, handicap and reprisal by the United States Postal Service (Postal Service).[1] Plaintiff bases this action primarily on the Postal Service's failure to restore him to his former position which the Postal Service was obligated to do pursuant to a settlement agreement discussed in more detail below.[2] Plaintiff also contends that he was subjected to discriminatory conduct throughout the reinstatement process. The Postal Service dismissed plaintiff's Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) complaint by opinion dated May 15, 1990 pursuant to 29 C.F.R. Sections 1613.405(a) and (b), because the Merit System Protection Board (MSPB) had adjudicated some of the issues raised by plaintiff in his EEO complaint.

[1] The handicap claim must be brought pursuant to Section 501 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973, 29 U.S.C. Section 791. Johnston v. Horne, 875 F.2d 1415, 1421 (9th Cir. 1989).

[2] The court construes plaintiff's complaint so as not to include claims of discrimination relating to disciplinary action taken by the Postal Service in 1987 which were raised in an earlier case (No. 90-0920). The court dismissed that complaint on November 7, 1990.

A. The MSPB Proceedings

The Postal Service terminated plaintiff's employment as a manual distribution clerk assigned to Tour II on april 4, 1988. Plaintiff challenged his dismissal with the MSPB on the basis of race, religion, handicap and reprisal discrimination. On August 1, 1988, the parties entered into a settlement agreement and the MSPB maintained jurisdiction over the matter to interpret and enforce the agreement. The settlement agreement is attached as Exhibit 2 to the declaration of Robert G. Funge. According to the agreement, plaintiff was to receive workers' compensation until his health returned and then be "restored to duty" except that plaintiff would not be "returned to a position under Nick Gomez's supervision." The agreement provided that it was "a full and final resolution of all matter[s] described above. . . ."

Plaintiff filed a compliance appeal on May 10, 1989 to the MSPB alleging that the Postal Service was in violation of settlement agreement in two respects: unreasonable delay in job restoration and assignment to Tour I instead of Tour II. Ultimately, the MSPB found that Postal Service had delayed unreasonably and ordered back pay with interest but held that plaintiff's restoration to Tour I constituted job restoration in accordance with the settlement agreement.

Finally, after additional compliance appeals, the MSPB dismissed plaintiff's compliance appeal on July 23, 1990 holding that the Postal Service had complied with the terms of the settlement agreement. The final decision provided notice of the right to appeal to the United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit.

B. EEO Proceedings

On May 10, 1989, the same date plaintiff filed his compliance appeal with the MSPB, plaintiff sought EEO counseling concerning his restoration as a manual distribution clerk on Tour I instead of Tour II. Plaintiff alleged that postal Service employees Mike Hopper, Robert Funge and Joyce Ong discriminated against him on the basis of race, union activities, disabilities and for purpose of reprisal for the "failure to mandatory restore to job & failure to restore to rightful day shift bid position or equal [sic]." Plaintiff filed a formal EEO complaint on June 20, 1989. The Postal Service investigated and proceeded the complaint, and, on November 24, 1989, issued a Notice of Proposed Disposition with a finding of no discrimination. Plaintiff requested a hearing on December 14, 1989 and the Postal Service referred plaintiff's complaint to an Administrative Law Judge ("ALJ"). The ALJ returned the complaint to the agency with a recommendation that it be dismissed pursuant to the "mixed case" guidelines, 29 C.F.R. Section 1614.401.

The Postal Service dismissed plaintiff's complaint by Final Agency Decision dated May 15, 1990 pursuant to 29 C.F.R. Section 1613.405(a) which provides in part:

> whenever an agency is presented with a mixed case complaint concerning an action that has previously been appealed by the complainant, to the MSPB, the agency shall reject the complaint (in writing) citing this subsection as the authority therefor, regardless of whether the allegations of discrimination raised in the mixed case complaint were raised in the previous appeal to the MSPB.

Section 1613.405(b) also provides for cancellation of a mixed case complaint where it is determined that a mixed case appeal was filed. The Postal Service ruled that the complaint was a mixed case complaint and dismissed it by final agency decision dated May 5, 1990, because plaintiff sought to raise issues adjudicated before the MSPB. Plaintiff timely filed the underlying civil action.

STANDARDS

Summary judgment is appropriate when it is demonstrated that there exists no genuine issue as to any material fact, and that the moving party is entitled to judgment as a matter of law. Fed. R. Civ. P. 56(c); Adickes v. S.H. Kress & Co., 398 U.S. 144, 157 (1970); Poller v. Columbia Broadcast System, 368 U.S. 464, 467 (1962); Loehr v. ventura County Community College Dist., 743 F.2d 1310 1313 (9th Cir. 1984).

DISCUSSION

When a final agency decision is based on the merits of plaintiff's discrimination claims, plaintiff is entitled to a trial de novo. Clark v. Chasen, 619 F.2d 1330, 1337 (9th Cir. 1980). When a final agency decision is based on the plaintiff's failure to prosecute, the plaintiff is entitled to trial de novo of that issue. See id. at 1337 n.18. A final agency action dismissing a complaint pursuant to the mixed case regulations, however, need not be reviewed. As the court stated in Korman v. Baker, 686 F. Supp. 812 (N.D.Cal. 1988)

> even if the [mixed case] regulations were properly applied at the administrative level, the governing statute precludes their application as a bar to judicial revise. Section 7702, which the regulations purport to implement, provides that "[n]othing in this section shall be construed to affect the right to trial de novo" under Title VII.

Id, at 814 (citing 5 U.S.C. Section 7702(e)(3). The court noted that the administrative procedures under Title VII are "byzantine" and "should not be applied in such manner that they become a trap for the unwary." Id.

The Equal Employment Opportunity

> Act is a remedial statute to be liberally construed in favor of the victims of discrimination. . . . The broad structure and purpose to Title VII, as established by Congress, to initiate both administrative complaints and lawsuits. Congress did not intend that such laymen, not scholled know exactly what procedural step they must next take in order to perfect their claims.

administrative procedures . . . ."

Korman, 686 F. Supp. at 815 (citing Wade

v. Secretary of the Army, 796 F.2d 1369, 1376 (11th Cir. 1986)).

The administrative regulations are supported to facilitate the resolution of discrimination claims. They are not supposed to be an obstacle course which only the most astute claimants can traverse. The court finds that plaintiff made a good faith effort to comply with the administrative procedures which are indeed byzantine.

A "mixed case" arises when a discrimination claim is raised by federal employee in connection with claim of adverse action that is appealable to the MSPB. 29 C.F.R. Section 1613.401(b). An employee may appeal a mixed case to the MSPB, 29 C.F.R. Section 1613.402(b), or pursue the claim through the EEO channels by filing a complaint with the agency. 29 C.F.R. Section 1613.403. A complainant may not pursue both options. 29 C.F.R. Section 1613.403; Hays v.

Postmaster General, 868 F.2d 328, 329 (9th Cir. 1989).

While plaintiff may have been mistaken in believing that his claims of discrimination in connection with this job restoration were properly handled through the EEO process, two factors warrant a finding that plaintiff made a good faith effort to comply with the administrative procedure. First, it appears that plaintiff was never informed, pursuant to 5 C.F.R. Section 1201.157, that if he wanted to appeal a final decision of the MSPB that involved a claim of discrimination, he could only do so by filing a civil action in district court or seek review before the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission. Rather, the MSPB informed plaintiff that he had the right to appeal to the Court of appeals for the Federal Circuit, a court that has no jurisdiction to entertain a Title VII claim. See 868 F.2d at 331, n.3. Second, it appears that no one from the Postal Service involved in the EEO process informed plaintiff, pursuant to 29 C.F.R. Section 1613.405 that he should bring his discrimination claims to the attention of the MSPB. Rather, the final agency decision provided that if plaintiff were dissatisfied with the decision, he could file a civil action in federal district court. Plaintiff thereupon filed the underlying action.

The court addresses defendants' arguments that either res judicata or the settlement agreement bars plaintiff's Title VII claim. First, Kremer v. Chemical Construction Corp., 456 U.S.

461, reh'g denied, 458 U.S. 1133 (1982) is distinguishable. There has been no prior court litigation of plaintiff's reinstatement claim. For the reasons discussed above, the court will not give the MSPB decision res judicata effect for that would constitute a trap for the unwary in violation of the Equal Employment Opportunity Act.

Second, the court cannot find, as a matter of law, that the settlement agreement bars plaintiff from raising claims of discrimination arising out of his reinstatement. The agreement merely recites that it resolves the matters "described above" which concerned plaintiff's termination and not his reinstatement.

THEREFORE IT IS ORDERED that defendants' motion for summary judgment be, and the same is, hereby denied.

Plaintiff seeks leave to proceed in forma pauperis with an action under Title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended, 42 U.S.C. Section 2000e et seq.

After reviewing the affidavit filed in support of his request to proceed in forma pauperis, the court has concluded that plaintiff should be granted leave to proceed without prepayment of costs. See 28 U.S.C. Section 1915(a).

APPENDIX V

Plaintiff should note that the determination that he may proceed in forma pauperis does not complete the threshold inquiry required of the district court. The court is also directed by 28 U.S.C. Section 1915(d) to determine that the action is of legal substance and therefore not frivolous or malicious. As the record in this action now stands, however this determination cannot be made as yet. The court retains the case until the record is sufficiently developed to support the directed inquiry.

IT IS THEREFORE ORDERED that plaintiff's request for leave to proceed in forma pauperis with this action is granted.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that the United States Marshal is directed to serve the summons and complaint upon the defendant without prepayment of costs within sixty (60) days of the date of this order. If the United States Marshall is unable to effectuate service on the defendant within sixty (60) days, he is directed to report that fact and the reason therefor to the undersigned.
